

Dear Vince,

Thank you for your excellent presentation at our recent managers meeting in San Diego. You educated, entertained and motivated our people. Having two main centers get on the same page has helped us a great deal. You made us think and dig deep on ways our products impact customers. You pulled real-life examples of how our supplements and Rx meds positively influence people's lives.

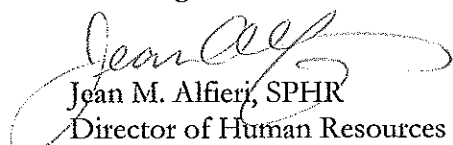

By partnering with us on the objectives of our meeting you created a deeper commitment and passion with our key group of employees. You expertly weaved this into the mission statements we created. The preparation and preconference discovery with our leadership made all the difference. By guiding our group exercises, changing group sizes between two to ten and interaction between people at other tables you facilitated different ideas, perceptions and created a wider bond.

Should you show this letter to other meeting planning executives I would like them to know about your dynamic styles as a speaker. You are clearly at ease in front of an audience and can draw out the best in people. Your authenticity during your entire presentation is what makes you so endearing and genuine.

Vince, our employees were energized – and that is a valuable commodity these days! Your catch phrases, like “the elephant buzz”, have become a part of our vocabulary here at Nexgen Pharma.

Thank you for a superb job. It is without hesitation that we recommend your expertise to any company seeking an outside speaker on the topic of accelerating peak performance both individually and company wide.

Kind Regards,

Jean M. Alfieri, SPHR
