

Andrew D. Keyt

Speaker Intro

Andrew Keyt is widely recognized as a thought leader on issues unique to family owned businesses. Speaking from his own professional experiences and research, he inspires family business owners to connect with their passions and follow their true purpose in work and life. Andrew firmly believes - “Family business is where values meet vision!”

Andrew is a contributing writer to several industry and national publications, and he is currently working on his book, Myths & Mortals - How the Children of Legends Succeed in Family and Business, to be published in 2010. He is often quoted in The Wall Street Journal, Chicago Tribune, Los Angeles Times, Fortune Magazine, Smart Money, The Economist, Families in Business, Family Business and Family Business Review.

Having been a member of his own family partnership and having served as manager in two family-owned firms, Keyt has firsthand experience with family business challenges.

Keyt is an executive director of the Loyola University Chicago Family Business Center and president and founder of Keyt Consulting. He holds a master's degree in family systems theory from Northwestern University with a concentration in family business. He is a cum laude graduate of Kenyon College.

Please Welcome... Andrew Keyt (pronounced Kite)