

A Note from Frank Abagnale

I spoke at two programs in Nevada on June 2, 2009 for a financial services client. The other primary speaker on the program was Frank Abagnale, the world's leading authority on fraud and identity theft. You may recall him as played by Leonardo DiCaprio in the movie Catch Me If You Can a few years ago.

I received a copy of a note about me he sent to his primary contact at the speakers bureau that exclusively represents him. It is used with Mr. Abagnale's permission.

Subject: Jeff Thredgold

Gary,

I had the opportunity to hear this gentleman speak. He was fantastic. He has a way of delivering a message on the state of the economy and current questions on economics better than anyone I've ever heard. If you ever have the need for someone to speak on this subject, he may be someone you want to look at.

I try to bring you people I see and hear once in a while (which is rare) that I think are incredible speakers.

Frank

Highest regards,

