To Whom It May Concern,

This a letter of endorsement and a positive character reference for Matthew Zachary, a very talented, ambitious and visionary young man whom I have had the pleasure of knowing and personally coaching for more than five years.

When I started out in medicine, the notion of treating the patient and not the disease was foreign to both medical training and the general public. Today we can't imagine the healthcare landscape without it. People like Matthew not only embody this concept but with his personal experience surviving cancer at such a young age, he is a native and true leader who can channel his passion and energy into something bigger than himself.

I have had the pleasure of sharing the stage with Matthew on several occasions. With confidence, I can say that he offers audiences the opportunity to witness an example of true healing through love, medicine and miracles. His power of intention is sincere and his appearances make for lasting impressions. Matthew possesses a keen and focused acuity about the forces in the universe that allow the act of creation to take place. How he has chosen to live his life in the wake of tragic events is evidence to that.

In closing, it is my belief that Matthew Zachary's contribution to any performance engagement or employment opportunity would be profound. He is an asset to any organization and, through his leadership and vision, will continue to inspire, motivate and empower audiences large and small for as long as he seeks fit. He has learned how to turn a curse into a blessing.

Sincerely,
