To Whom It May Concern:

I have been privileged to participate in several workshops in a variety of venues presented by Deb Bixler.

As a member of a live audience during the all day production/creation of her Now We're Cooking television show (they taped 6 in one day), I marveled at her ability to multitask while "on the air". I have attended several of her healthy workshops, a business presentation and also watched her when presenting to children.

Deb is knowledgeable in many arenas and excels at presenting to a wide variety of audiences. Deb performs in a dynamic, fast paced style that keeps the audience involved. She has a way of breaking things down to understandable levels through pictures and parables that impact the audience and create an environment conducive to learning. Her presentations always include a call to action which inspires the attendees to make changes in their life.

Deb is definitely a multi-faceted presenter who is very comfortable on stage. She is an expert at allowing the personality of the room to drive the presentation. I enthusiastically recommend Deb Bixler as a quality performer who always gives the extra mile.

Sincerely,
