To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to provide this letter of reference for Gary Patterson, with whom I have worked for 9 years. In my position as President, I have first hand knowledge of Gary's performance in the executive role. Gary works within impeccable professional boundaries. Because he has a great awareness of the world in general and the world around him, Gary has been able to manage the demands of investors, personnel, peers, and board members.

When Gary started at American Cellular, there was a minimal accounting system and organization in place, nor were there sophisticated operating systems in place. Gary came into an organization that was solid on a sales, but was in much need of systems and administration.

I watched Gary turn the organization around. In addition to his competence in the technical side of management, Gary has a special talent for working with and responding to the people side of company matters. He has always demonstrated much professionalism, political acumen, sensitivity and diplomacy in handling both mundane and highly charged issues with his various constituencies. He is masterful at analyzing critical situations and chooses problem-solving strategy with clarity and foresight.

For the entire time I have known him, he has portrayed himself as a valuable associate, strong in communications skills. He has the ability to take a strong initiative on projects and see them through and can perform beyond expectation. He is very personable and has a fantastic rapport with people.

I recommend Mr., Patterson to you. He is intelligent, well organized, self-starting, and hard working. He can be a valuable asset to your team and can add a new dimension as well.

Sincerely

Andy Beck
