Michael Scott Karpovich, CSP

Diagnosed with brain damage at age four, beaten up and called a "nerd" by bullies... this unlikely hero has discovered that our greatest adversities are what really make us strong!

In spite of or perhaps because of his awkward start, Michael Scott Karpovich has worked successfully as a farmer, a popular radio disc jockey, a high school drama coach, a counselor and a college instructor! Today, he speaks to over 300,000 people annually as a popular keynote presenter, is the youngest president of the Professional Speakers Association of Michigan, and is a charter member of the Pennsylvania Speakers Association. Michael is also one of only four Honorary Lifetime Members of the New England Speakers Association and is one of less than 300 Certified Speaking Professionals on the planet!

Not bad for a brain-damaged nerd!
